1: Overview

Key Documents

There are four key documents that support the College's commitment to and development of Equality and Diversity.

- 1. The Equality and Diversity Policy*
The purpose of the policy document is to provide the overarching aims of the College in celebrating diversity and ensuring equality of opportunity for all. This is set in the current legislative framework and is reviewed every three years by the corporation.
- 2. Annual Self Assessment Report and associated Action Plan*
The purpose of the College's own annual self assessment report is to review all aspects of College provision including equality and diversity activity and outcomes over the previous year. This report is primarily for the benefit of the College to enable it to develop and improve aspects of its equality and diversity activity. The College's action plan is formulated following annual self assessment and includes the actions the College needs to take in the area of equality and diversity.
- 3. Equality and Diversity Objectives*
In line with the requirements of the Equality Act 2010 we publish, four-yearly, our Equality and Diversity Objectives. The Objectives are reviewed annually as part of the self assessment process.
- 4. Equality and Diversity Information*
Again, in line with the requirements of the Equality Act 2010, we publish, annually, equality and diversity information about our staff and student bodies.

Our Aims

Barton Peveril College is fully committed to equality and diversity. The College actively seeks to monitor, advance and encourage the active participation of all individuals and groups. It meets fully its commitments to equality and diversity legislation and strives to uphold the spirit as well as the letter of the law, celebrating the enrichment brought to the workforce and student population by differences in individuals and groups.

We aim to:

- positively celebrate and advance diversity and equal opportunities for all our students and staff and governors, either current or prospective, and promote fundamental British values.
- provide an environment where everyone is treated equally and as individuals regardless of colour, race, nationality, ethnic or national origin, religion or belief, political belief, social or economic class, marital or parental status, gender, sexual orientation, age, disability or any other perceived difference.

- inspire all our staff and students to help create an environment where everyone feels welcome and confident that they will be treated fairly, that they will be valued as an individual and that their views and opinions will be encouraged.
- Within the framework of existing legislation, wherever practicable, achieve and maintain a governing body, staff body and student body, which reflects the local community in which it operates.

Compliance with the Equality Act 2010

We will act in accordance with the Equality Act 2010 by:

General Duties

Having due regard to the need to:

- eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment, victimisation and any other conduct prohibited by the Act;
- advance equality of opportunity between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it; and
- foster good relations between people who share a protected characteristic and people who do not share it.

Having due regard means consciously thinking about the three aims of the Equality Duty as part of the process of decision-making within the organisation. This means that consideration of equality issues must influence our decisions reached – such as in how we act as an employer; how we develop, evaluate and review policy; how we design, deliver and evaluate services, and how we commission and procure from others.

Having due regard to the need to advance equality of opportunity involves considering the need to:

- remove or minimise disadvantages suffered by people due to their protected characteristics;
- meet the needs of people with protected characteristics; and
- encourage people with protected characteristics to participate in public life or in other activities where their participation is low.

Fostering good relations involves tackling prejudice and promoting understanding between people who share a protected characteristic and others.

Complying with the Equality Duty may involve treating some people better than others, as far as this is allowed by discrimination law. For example, it may involve making use of an exception or the positive action provisions in order to provide a service in a way which is appropriate for people who share a protected characteristic – such as providing computer training to older people to help them access information and services.

Specific Duties

- publishing information to demonstrate our compliance with the Equality Duty, at least annually; and
- setting equality objectives (at least one), at least every four years

Protected Characteristics

The nine protected characteristics covered by the Equality Duty are:

- age
- disability
- gender reassignment
- marriage and civil partnership (but only in respect of eliminating unlawful discrimination)
- pregnancy and maternity
- race – this includes ethnic or national origins, colour or nationality
- religion or belief – this includes lack of belief
- sex
- sexual orientation

The Other Four

Ofsted will also consider the following categories when considering how effectively the College manages its duties under the Equality Act 2010:

- Socio-economic deprivation
- Young carers
- Ex-offenders
- Looked after learners

Publishing information

It is up to each public body to decide for itself what information it publishes to show its compliance with the Equality Duty. This will vary greatly, depending on the size of the body; the range of functions it performs; and the extent to which those functions could affect equality. There is no prescribed format.
